Motivo detallado de su solicitud:

Dear Consulate General of Venezuela,
Of all the Latin American countries, I have always been keenly interested in the culture and history of Venezuela. In light of the above fact, the unique blending of indigenous, African, and Spanish influences that characterize Venezuela is something I am particularly looking forward to seeing in person. Angel Falls is one of the natural wonders that is a must-visit on my itinerary—the highest free-falling waterfall in the world. This wonder lies in Canaima National Park, which falls under the category of the most protected UNESCO World Heritage sites. Moreover, I will have an opportunity to get acquainted with the life of bustling Caracas and delve into the culture, visiting, for instance, the Museum of Contemporary Art of Caracas, in order to know more about the achievements in art in the country.
Another attractive feature is feeling that warmth and hospitality from Venezuelan people, getting to know their traditions, and sharing with them if, in any way, it is possible to join local festivities. As a travel enthusiast, I have the greatest respect for the laws, culture, and environment of the countries I visit. I ensure my stay in Venezuela is only for tourism, and due preparations have been made to enable me to travel smoothly and responsibly within the country.
This will include ensuring that I secure accommodation, work out my travel itinerary, and abide by any health and safety guidelines issued by the Venezuelan government and my government. Therefore, any positive response to my visa request shall be highly appreciated, as this will give me the opportunity to visit and know firsthand the beauty and diversity of Venezuela. Thank you for considering my request.
Sincerely,
Hani Alammar

¿Cuántos sitios de Venezuela desea visitar y por qué?

1. The Angel Falls and the Canaima National Park. This would be my first site, touring Angel Falls, located deeper in the heart of the Canaima National Park and being considered the highest uninterrupted fall in the world. The peculiarity of this tepui formation and the unique ecosystem is testimony to the ancient geological history of this planet; all this has combined together to have this place listed in UNESCO World Heritage. The place appeals to my inner self, not only because of its beauty but also for knowing the ecological importance and culture of the native Pemón.
2. Archipiélago Los Rojones: Clear waters, white sandy beaches, rich marine life—this place is a dream come true for all those who love nature and find the paradise of a country in its marine biodiversity. The natural charm of this island, united with a 100%-pure environment, is what attracts me to visit Los Roques. Apart from this, eco-friendly sporting activities, like snorkeling or bird-watching, are to the fullest acquaintance of all the treasures Venezuela has in store for its guests.
3. The Coro Historical Centre and its Port (La Vela de Coro): Certainly, this city, which is enrolled on the World Heritage List by UNESCO, is one of the first to the west of Venezuela. It characterizes a good maintained colonial architectural structure coupled with the importance of its culture. Coro offers a great opportunity to know more about the history of colonial South America and understand the mix that allowed Venezuelan identity to develop between European and native influences.
4. Rjonipu'ra: Part of the Rjonipi Mountain: The Guiana Shield, Mount Roraima is considered an integral part of the Rjonipi range, which forms one of the oldest geological formations. The thing I find so incredible about this national park, which impresses me every time I think about it, is that, in spite of the difficulty in trekking to the top, the chance to observe such biodiversity and landscapes almost gives the impression of being on another planet. The visit to this park should symbolize my adventurous spirit and pursuit of knowledge of these natural wonders written across the face of our planet.
The adventure seeks to receive much more than these phenomenal places but plunges into life in Venezuela to respectfully embrace and learn from the traditional communities encountered along the way.
